

Biography

Sue Reedy Williams

Partner

Guiding her clients through their legal issues, Sue Williams concentrates her practice on a wide range of legal services pertaining to estate planning, estate administration and business law. In her estate planning practice, Sue works with clients to develop plans that minimize taxes while helping families meet their financial and personal goals. These plans often include asset protection planning, special needs trusts, family gifting techniques and charitable giving strategies.

In her estate administration practice, Sue advises and guides executors, trustees and guardians on estate and trust administration, fiduciary duties, accounting and tax matters, and management of and disposition of closely-held businesses and real estate.

Sue also counsels closely-held businesses and not-for-profit corporations on corporate matters including business formation, corporate maintenance, contract negotiations, mergers, acquisitions, sales, succession planning and commercial real estate transactions.

A frequent author, Sue has published many articles on estate planning and tax issues.

Sue is a member of the Chicago, Illinois State and DuPage County Bar Associations, and the National Elder Law Association and Partnership for Philanthropic Planning.

An active member of her community, Sue is a current member of the DuPage County Bar Foundation and on the Board of Directors of The Reiki Share Project, an Illinois NFP Corporation, and serves as an advisory board member of the Project for Inspired Education, an Illinois NFP Corporation which supports Districts 88 public schools. She formerly served on the board of Educate the Children (an Illinois NFP corporation), and was also a member and President of the St. Pius X School Board.
